OVER HALF CENTURY OF SERVICE WHERE NEEDED THURSDAY, DEC. 26, 1957

A Picture You Can't Paint

More than five hundred little faces held expressions of joy and wonder last Saturday as the children of Rockwell employees and guests turned out to see and greet Santa Claus on his arrival at the annual Rockwell Christmas party. Little eyes danced and hearts were thumping as Santa passed among those present giving out candy and getting ready for the gifts that were stacked high around the eighteen foot Christmas tree that held the center of attraction in the old gymnasium at Georgia Teachers College, where the affair was held.

For These We Are Thankful

Perhaps the most common topic of conversation between folks generally includes conversation about the weather, the other person's health and "just things generally." So often we find ourselves being asked the direct question "how are things going?"

In a similar manner, to our own display of interest in other people's affairs we have received many and varied answers. The reply, however, from one of our friends that "folks have been good to us" and that "we've got a lot to be thankful for" has always helped somehow to remind us of how totally dependent we are on our fellowman and how grateful we should be for our blessings that we too often take for granted.

At this season of the year as we look over the year just passed and as we turn now with hope and renewed purpose for the new year we all need to remember that "folks have indeed been good to us and that surely we have a great deal for which we can be grateful."

"You-all" ... Did You Hear That?

Kerstin Pihl, a typical little blond Scandinavian girl, not only stole the hearts of local Rotarians and their wives at a recent Christmas affair of the club but she "stole the show," too, when she gave an account of Christmas customs in her native Sweden. A student at Georgia Teachers College under a Rotary scholarship, sponsored by the Statesboro and Milton Rotary clubs, the young lady noted some of the differences in our customs and those of her homeland.

The manner in which she has been received into our college and local community and the way that some of our customs and expressions have already become a part of her, was reflected in part when she made reference to the group in the typical southern "you-all" manner. As if shocked at her otherwise flawless English, she was quick to acknowledge her error, only to appear proud that she had made it.

"Did you hear that?" she asked as she concluded her remarks on Christmas in Sweden. Her eyes literally danced at the end of the program when she received a gift from the local group, air tickets and reservations to New York to meet her parents, who were due to arrive here from Stockholm, Sweden. "This will be the nicest Christmas ever" she said, as she held her tickets close.

The voice of the people of Bulloch County has been heard, and there is no mistaking its intention. It did not say that there will not be liquor sold hereafter in Bulloch County, but it did say it shall not be lawful to sell. By a vote of almost exactly two-to-one, they registered against future legal sales, as is shown by the tabulation of votes cast—1,382 for sales and 2,757 against.

Plans are being made to broadcast over WWSN Congressman Bullock's address at the annual meeting of the Bulloch County Farm Bureau from Teachers College on January 3, R. P. Mikell, president of the local chapter, announced.

Bulloch County stands second in cotton in the state for the season up to December 15th with 18,771 bales. Mrs. S. J. Proctor, county tax collector, did a land office business Tuesday in the collection of taxes when she took in a total of $32,278.66—the largest day's business in the county.

C. H. Brewington, who operates an automobile plant shop on Oak street, near East Main, reported to police Tuesday night about 10 o'clock that he had been robbed of $100 at pistol point in his place of business a few moments earlier.

A stranger, who represented himself as an employee of the internal revenue department, but who was a fake, collected fines approximating $20 during the week when he found defaced revenue stamps on the clear boxes on display; took checks in payment and later cashed the checks locally.

An editorial said, "Four hundred boys absent from Camp Wheeler without leave for the Christmas holidays will, it is said, be court martialized and made to pay the penalty for their lack of respect for discipline."

An article is quoted from Savannah Press which says: "Through approximately 8,000 hogs have been purchased and slaughtered in the Bulloch Packing plant's operation, there is ample supply of swine in Georgia to keep the plant working full time at its maximum capacity for an indefinite time, according to George C. Dixon, manager, who was in the city today."

It was something that you had to feel, with the excitement tingling through the air as those wonderful star-eyed youngsters turned expectantly and hopefully toward Santa Claus in a house packed full with folks, fun and—old Santa.

WILKES-MORRIS VOWS

Miss Mary Ann Wilkes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Wilkes, of Claxton, became the bride of Mr. Thaddeus Morris, Jr., of Statesboro, before a large assemblage of wedding guests Sunday afternoon, December 15th, at the First Baptist Church in Claxton.

Elder J. Walter Hendricks of Savannah, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Dr. Hendricks is also officiating minister at the wedding of the parents of the couple.

Mrs. W. L. Adams of Claxton, organist, Mrs. Law Schaff of Augusta, and Dr. Roger Holland of Statesboro, vocalists, presented a program of nuptial music.

The vows were spoken before an arch entwined with fern and garlands of flowers with spiral and candelabra holding burning white candles. Flanking the altar arrangement were floor standards of giant white chrysanthemums, gladioli and palms forming the background. The pews were marked with white mums and a lighted candle.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a wedding dress of pearl and lace with a long train of rose point lace, delicately threaded with crystal cut beads, sequins and seed pearls. Long-sleeved and closed in back with covered buttons, the bodice had a decollete accented with lace medallions and Empire drape. The princess skirt swished into a cathedral train. A plateau cap of rosepoint edged in pearls and sequins held her hair in a superbly veiled French illusion. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid, and showered with stephanotis and lilies of the valley.

Miss Margie Wilkes, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a floor length dress of Christmas red velvet, the bouffant skirt gathered to the long-line bodice at sides and back while a princess panel flowed from the Empire draped V-neckline to the hem. The other attendants wore copies of the maid of honor's costume. They carried white muffs, with sprays of red carnations and holly leaves.

Mrs. Bobby Kennedy of Claxton, bridesmaid, wore a dress of white and red. Miss Mary Jo Kennedy, bridesmaid, wore a dress of white and red. Miss Mary Jo Kennedy, bridesmaid, wore a dress of white and red.

Severely disabled workers 50 to 65 years of age who could qualify for the new social security disability benefits will become payable last July, will lose some of their payments if they do not apply to their social security district offices before January 1, 1958.

Qualified workers who make application for disability insurance benefits before the end of December can be paid benefits back as far as the month of July, Mr. Hamilton said.

To be eligible for social security disability insurance benefits before the end of December, a worker must have a disability so severe that he cannot do any substantial gainful work in addition, he must have social security credit for at least 5 out of the 10 years before he became disabled, including at least a year and a half out of the 3 years just before his disability began.

For those who meet the requirements, disability benefits can begin with the 7th month of disability, but no earlier than July 1957, the first month of which the new benefits became payable.

Mr. Hamilton points out, however, payments to disabled persons who apply for these benefits after December 31 of this year may begin no earlier than the month in which their applications are received, no matter how long they have been disabled.

During the past twenty-one years the Savannah plant of the Union Bag-Camp Paper Corporation has continued to grow until today it is the largest pulp and paper mill and Kraft container plant in the world.

What does it mean to Bulloch County to be neighbors to such an enterprise? Well the total effect is impossible to evaluate, but one thing is certain, Bulloch County has shared in the growth of the plant.

Union Bag-Camp's payroll has steadily grown according to Bob Lee, Conservation Forester with the company, until today the company's annual payroll in the county exceeds $125,000.

The payroll, of course, passes through the hands of many people in the county. Some of the payroll is spent for groceries and clothing, while part is spent for gasoline, haircuts, fishing licks, doctor's bills, and the hundreds of other necessities and luxuries that are used in our daily lives.

Many Bulloch County landowners have benefited from Union Bag's growth. Since 54 percent of the county is in timber, pulpwood and lumbering have always been important sources of revenue to landowners.

Realizing that it has an obligation to the private landowners who supply so much of the pulpwood that is needed to run the Savannah Plant, Union Bag provides the services of a conservation forester to assist without charge any landowner who may request his services. Some of these services include advice on tree planting, protection from fire, insect control, thinning and harvesting of timber, a timber marking service, etc.

When it is possible to obtain them, thousands of free seedlings are given to interested landowners to help provide forests for the future. The assistance of a forester can be had by writing the Conservation Department of Union Bag.

$1,150,000.00 Of Bonds Sold

Twenty-four bidders vied for $1,150,000.00 worth of City of Statesboro Water and Sewerage Revenue Bonds as bids were opened at City Hall on December 18. The issue was sold to R. S. Dickson & Company of Atlanta, at an interest rate of 4.1004. J. H. Austin, of J. W. Tindall Cannon, fiscal agent for the City of Statesboro, advised the mayor and city council that the sale was an exceptionally good interest rate. 1958 CADILLAC MAKES DEBUT

The long, low design of the 1958 Cadillac is easily apparent in this Sedan de Ville. Highlighting this styling are the "long tail fins" which give a feeling of grace and motion to the car's appearance. Another new feature for the 1958 Cadillac is the rear-ventilating (ICV) windows. These ventilates improve rear passenger visibility and add length to the car's appearance. The "long tail fins" which give a feeling of grace and motion to the car's appearance. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Cloyce Martin, and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Zetterower joined the other members of the Harville Baptist Church in the Ogeechee River Baptist Association, which recently completed their building program of renovating the old sanctuary, adding extra Sunday School rooms and extra space in the Auditorium.

The Harville Church is happy with this new building under the leadership of Rev. Inman Gerald. Rev. Gerald came to this church in May 1957, from the Cool Springs Church in the Emanuel Association. Mrs. Gerald was formerly Talmage Alderman, of Statesboro. They have four daughters, Lynn B, Angela S, Junan 4, and Jimmy 3.

The GA's were taught a study course on Nigeria Monday night at Harville Baptist Church by the pastor, Rev. Inman Gerald, after which a film was shown by Rev. and Mrs. Ted Page. The GA's of East Grove Baptist Church were invited.

The Gay Twenty Club held their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. Ernest Bule. A large crowd was present to enjoy games and contests in which prizes were given. After the business meeting, dainty refreshments were served.

Time To Examine All Livestock

The month of December, when the pressure of farm work slackens somewhat, is a good time to have livestock examined and to inspect the farm's physical plant, the American Foundation for Animal Health suggested today.
The slack farm season is a good time to have any needed surgery performed on livestock, the Foundation said. Such operations as dehorning cattle, trimming the feet of herd bulls and removing tusks from boars should be done this month. Farmers should have their veterinarian check dairy cows for mastitis, and bulls for fertility.
Livestock need physical examinations just as much as humans do," Foundation officials said. "An annual physical checkup in December or January can pay real dividends, especially in detecting latest diseases before they have a chance to spread through the whole herd, or in learning of nutritional or breeding problems which could hamper profits."
"Ventilation of poultry houses, hog houses and dairy barns should also be checked. Frost formed on the ceiling of the barn or house is an indication of faulty ventilation. It contributes to pneumonia in pigs by causing the animals to become chilled.

Mr. Hamilton advised all farmers to keep accurate account of the wages paid such workers since these wages must be reported to the Internal Revenue Service at the end of the year. A special form which can be obtained from the Internal Revenue Service is provided for making this report. The new tax rate effective 1957 is 2-1/4 percent for the employer and 2-1/4 percent for the employee.

S. S. Law Benefits For Farmers

Farm workers get Social Security protection beginning 1957 under new rules, said C. A. Hamilton, District Manager of the Savannah Social Security office.
Farm workers who are paid $150 or more in cash by one farmer during the year get the social security protection. Also covered are those who work at least 20 days on a time basis (payment by the hour, week, month, etc.).

Sets Record For Industry Safety

Southern Natural Gas Company has set an all-time record for safety in the natural gas industry.
The company has received the National Safety Council's Award of Honor in recognition of this achievement. At the time of the award, Southern Natural had gone 3,245,543 man hours without a disabling injury. The previous record was set several years ago by another gas transmission company which completed 3,170,000 man hours without a disabling injury.
Southern Natural's record is continuing as the company has not had a disabling injury to any of its personnel since August 6, 1956.
This was the second Award of Honor received by the company this year. The National Safety Council also presented Southern Natural the award for reducing its injury rate by more than 80 percent during 1956. This gives the company its all-time low frequency rate of 1.08 lost time injuries per million man hours worked. As a comparison, the frequency figure for the entire gas industry was 8.88 per million man hours worked.
